

PROVINCETOWN SPREE FOLLOWS FIGHT FOR HENRY

MAN SUFFERED HEADACHES FOR REVERES

Battle With Hijackers Over Fishermen's Find Preceded General Jail

Provincetown, March 9.—The breeze from the sea was carrying indeed to more than 200 townsfolk today, and to their heads, acquired in a general spree Saturday night and early yesterday, but kept quiet until today.

The spree began when between 150 and 200 men of high-powered 750 whistles, fished up by fishermen in the harbor, were discovered in a barn on the outskirts of the town.

Word quickly flashed through the town and a mob began to form. Then the townspeople discovered hijackers' booty at world. A pitched battle between the townspeople and the hijackers ended in utter rout of the latter. Then the looting began. The mobs, each containing 4 to 50 men, were ripped open. Cuffs were pulled and pictures snapped.

NEW FIGHTS STARTED. Pockets were filled and sacks placed in automobiles. New fights started when automobile owners returned to their cars with more liquor to discover that what they had stored there had been quickly removed to other cars.

Eventually the liquor was all out of the town, and the crowd, well inspired by now, moved on the town. In the midst of the revelry, Cape Cod reached a new level, when bottles were sold for $1 a pint—retail figures of $24 a case.

Not even the American celebration surpassed the jollification, which was in the nature of a riot. Carrying bottles from which men drank periodically, strolled arm in arm, singing joyously.

A man, with weaving steps, nearly a baby carriage along the sidewalk, but his car consisted of nearly a case of liquor. Even automobiles weaved through the streets with singing occupants.

ALL NIGHT SPREE. From 8 p. m. Saturday, when the fight with the hijackers was waged, until nearly 6 o'clock yesterday morning, the festival lasted, some of it in hurriedly formed house parties—and then quiet returned to the town.

The liquor found by the fishermen was only part of the loot. It was marked by run-runners. The fishermen were still making sales to and from the shore when liquor from their drivers away from the beach by coast guards. Then recovered an additional 200 cases, valued at about $15,000.

SEBURY: WILL PROBE CRIME. Albany, March 9. (AP)—Gov. Roosevelt today will formally appoint Samuel Seabury as commissioner under the new liquor law to investigate charges against the state's liquor traffic.

Seabury, a former state legislator, was appointed by the City of New York. He is a former police officer and has been charged with criminal law, and malfeasance in office.

As commissioner under the public officers law, Judge Seabury will have sweeping powers to investigate. Upon his arrival here last night Roosevelt made public a letter which he had written on the train to Judge Seabury advising him that he had decided to appoint him.

The Governor said Seabury would like to have him launch the investigation at the earliest possible moment. He made it plain the investigation does not involve personal integrity of Crain, but relates solely to his competency.

STORM BREAKS GARRETT JURY VERDICT E. STATES

Gale Tears Down Wires and Trees, and Up-Country Is Buried in Snow

Fair and colder weather today succeeded the screaming gale which lashed New England yesterday, accompanied by snow, rain, sleet, crashing surf and lightning, causing thousands of dollars damage.

Up-country communities were buried in snow, telephone, telegraph and electric light wires torn down, buildings struck by lightning and a coastline battered by monster waves last week was again buffeted by surf.

Some windows were broken by the gale, which attained 40 m.p.h. in the city and hillsides were blown over, and Joseph D. Sullivan was struck on the head by a falling sign.

BRIDGE BLOWN DOWN. A wooden bridge on the Boston & Maine tracks at Prison Point, Charlestown, was blown down, several small buildings were uprooted and many communities were in darkness.

Lightning struck the postoffice building in West Newton, clipping off part of the cornice and another bolt shattered the windows in the home of T. E. Lockwood, 100 West Newton st. In Provincetown the gale attained almost hurricane force, ripping the Government's tower in the darkness and tearing small boats from moorings.

During the height of the storm the steeple of the historic Congressional church at Marshfield blew down.

Scores of automobiles were stalled in Pittsburgh, where six inches of snow had fallen. In Pittsburgh several of the city limits, but in Peru the annual town meeting was postponed for a week because of drifted roads.

ROADS ARE BLOCKED. A New York, New Haven & Hartford snowplow was stalled by snow in the city limits, but in Peru the annual town meeting was postponed for a week because of drifted roads.

MODEL BOY SEEKS SOLACE IN PSALM SINGING AS WIDOW GOES TO LAST REST

AS A MERE CHILD, RUSSELL WAS FOND OF SINGING.

HE REGULARLY ATTENDED SUNDAY SCHOOL, WHERE HE WAS A MODEL PUPIL.

RUSSELL NOBLE

HE WAS ADMIRING BY ALL WHO MET HIM.

EVEN AT SEVEN, RUSSELL'S ONE JOY WAS BOOKS.

HIS EARLY CRAZE FOR THE GARDEN AND FLOWERS NEVER LEFT YOUNG NOBLE.

Characteristics by which Russell Noble, of Haverhill, earned the reputation "model boy" even in early childhood are illustrated by the Boston Evening American artist. He manifested a love for the outdoors at an early age, read much, and was an enthusiastic Sunday school member.

INVITATION 166. Come, Every Soul By Sin Oppressed

1. Come, ye sinners, ye sinners, there's a word for you.
2. For ye need it, ye need it, that word which is true.
3. Ye need it, ye need it, that word which is true.
4. Come, ye sinners, ye sinners, there's a word for you.

And he will surely give you rest, if ye will, in his word.
For ye need it, ye need it, that word which is true.
Ye need it, ye need it, that word which is true.
Ye need it, ye need it, that word which is true.

On - ly trust Him, on - ly trust Him, on - ly trust Him.

He will save you. He will save you. He will save you.

I Need Thee Every Hour

1. I need thee every hour, O Lord, my God, my King.
2. I need thee every hour, O Lord, my God, my King.
3. I need thee every hour, O Lord, my God, my King.
4. I need thee every hour, O Lord, my God, my King.

WHERE NOBLE TOOK NOTE FROM NEWSPAPER STORIES OF HAMMER MURDER.

No Loadeth Me

1. No loadeth me, O Lord, my God, my King.
2. No loadeth me, O Lord, my God, my King.
3. No loadeth me, O Lord, my God, my King.
4. No loadeth me, O Lord, my God, my King.

With a murderer's fate looming before Russell Noble, Haverhill "model boy" accused of the fatal hammer attack on Mrs. Clara E. Ellis, the youth joined fervently in the religious service at Essex County jail in Lawrence yesterday. His voice rang out above all others as the prisoners sang the stirring words of "Come, Every Soul By Sin Oppressed," "I Need Thee Every Hour," and "No Loadeth Me." Noble is confined to the east wing of the jail and is due for a long stay there inasmuch as he cannot be admitted to bail on a murder charge, scheduled to be brought today. Summer st., Haverhill, was the "street of tragedy" for Mrs. Ellis. The beginning and the end of her part in the fateful occurrence took place within a few blocks on this peaceful thoroughfare, lined with the mansions of Haverhill's elite. Young Noble attended high school on Summer st., delivered papers there, attempted his first break at the home of Miss Zoe Day, and attempted to rob Mrs. Ellis as she slept in her mansion there. When discovered horribly beaten and unconscious, Mrs. Ellis was rushed to Benson Hospital, a few doors away, where she died Saturday. While the wealthy widow was fighting for her life, young Noble frequented the Haverhill public library on Summer st., where he made copious notes of the crime. Mrs. Ellis passes out of the drama today, when her body is laid to rest beside that of her husband in Linwood Cemetery, at the end of Summer st.

FIFTH RUNS IN BARE FEET TO GIVE ALARM

Girl, Severely Burned, Leaps From Window and Goes Through Snow for Aid

Caribou, Me., March 9 (AP)—Four children were burned to death when trapped last night in the blazing farm home of Robert Seales in Woodland, an outlying community northwest of here.

Word of the fire reached here today when a fifth child, suffering from severe burns and exposure, was brought to a local hospital.

The dead were Robert, Jr., 13 months old; Chapar, 3; Bertha, 11 and Collins, 12.

The fifth child, Marjorie, 9, sleeping in an upper room, was awakened by the flames and attempted to arouse the others. Falling in this, she jumped through a window to the snow below and walked in her bare feet half a mile to a neighbor's home where the alarm was given. She was severely burned on her arms and body before she escaped the blazing building.

The fire occurred from undetermined origin while Mr. and Mrs. Seales and two other children were attending church in the village. They returned home to find the house in ruins.

DEATH CHEATED FOR BOY, 7, BY 'METAL LUNG'

Gift of Britton I. Budd Restores Lad's Breath After Hope Was Abandoned

Chicago, March 9 (AP)—By a miracle of modern science it appeared today that little Charles Coughley, 7, who a few days ago was apparently doomed to immediate death, would within a few weeks be on the way to health.

The miraculous instrument of science that is saving Charles' life in St. Francis Hospital is the automatic respirator, donated to the hospital recently by Britton I. Budd, utilities magnate.

When the boy was taken to St. Francis Hospital from Cook County Hospital, there was only the slightest sign of life in his tiny body.

FED THROUGH NOSE

He had contracted diphtheria within two weeks after having had scarlet fever, and the diphtheria had progressed to such a stage that his throat and lungs were paralyzed.

The only nourishment he received was liquids introduced through the nostrils.

Put into the respirator, which supplied lung action by alternating air pressure and vacuum over the chest, thus causing automatic expansion and contraction of the lungs, the lad soon began to show signs of improvement.

Today, he was taken from the respirator for a 20-minute period, during which time the lungs functioned normally.

TO BREATHE NORMALLY

As the paralysis was relieved the boy was able to take food naturally and his strength immediately rebounded.

Dr. Noel G. Shaw, physician in charge, was so satisfied with Charles' progress that he predicted the period when he would be taken out of the "metal lung" would be longer and more often from now on.

He predicted that within two weeks he would be able to breathe unaided.

3 BANDITS HOLD UP A BANK AND GET $13,000

Berlin, Ct., March 9 (AP)—Two men held up the Berlin Savings Bank as officers and customers arrived on opening today, forced Assistant Treasurer James Fitzsimmons to open the vault, and escaped in an auto in which a third man was waiting for them, with $13,000.

The men called admittance during the night by jimmieing a window, and covered George Knapik, janitor, when he opened the building at 7:30. Six subsequent callers at the bank, including officers and customers, were herded into one room, under the threatening pistol of one of the men, while the other seized the funds. They fled in the direction of Meriden.

G. O. P. WARNED BY LAGUARDIA ON DRY ISSUE

Washington, March 9 (INS).—While it is taken for granted by politicians of both parties that President Hoover will be re-elected and run for re-election as an outright dry next year, indications are multiplying that the Republicans will have to share some of the grief over the prohibition issue.

A small but militant Republican group is determined that the party shall not line up solidly with the dry in 1932 without a struggle. The party came out today with a demand that the Republican national committee be called to deal with the issue as the Democrats did here last week.

His proposal was greeted with a lot of h-u-h's by regular Republican leaders, but indicates a feeling that strongly pervades some sections of the party.

"One thing must be said for the Democrats—they had the courage to discuss prohibition in the open," said La Guardia.

"Republican leaders, rather than chuckle over the apparent division in the Democratic ranks, had better taken inventory in their own party. The least they can do is to call the Republican National Committee together and take up the prohibition question."

"It is highly desirable that the question be freely and openly discussed within party circles before convention time."

"The Republican leadership has within its power to sacrifice victory for prohibition. The Southern Democrats will be ready to sacrifice prohibition for victory."

King Alexander and Premier General Zivkovich left here during the day for southern Serbia to superintend relief operations. Trains were being sent out with food, shelter, medicines and drinking water.

Not one building was left standing in Pirva, where 19 persons were killed. In one village there were 20 persons killed and 22 wounded.

One report said the town of Brumizna had been almost destroyed.

At 5 o'clock this morning the seismograph here registered a violent shock with an epicenter about 800 miles away.

HOW SING'S BROTHERS AS POLICE GET SECRETS ABOUT FIRST HAMMER CASE

Sorrowing Throng Sees Haverhill Hammer Victim Go to Grave

ELLIS FAMILY IN HAVERTHILL FOR 300 YEARS

Ancestors of Hammer Victim Long Prominent in the Affairs of City

FOUND UNDER BED

Lawyer, police today were found hiding under the bed of Mrs. Clara Ellis, 49, in her room at a lodging house in Tremont st., Lawrence, which is eight miles from this city.

Police said he was arrested after officers "spotted" him on the woman since January 1 and was suspicious of her.

The defendant was held in $500 bail for the grand jury after pleading not guilty, the court finding "probable cause."

Police said he was sentenced to Sing Sing from New York city about 1923 for killing his common-law wife, and served seven years and nine months of a 12-year sentence.

Asked why he attended the hearing, McCormick at first refused to comment, but afterward said:

"I was simply attracted by the fact that a hammer figure in this case as in young Noble's case, I wasn't interested beyond that."

The occurrence is causing considerable discussion here, however, friends of the accused boy point to the possibility that might be in the situation from the point of view of the defense.

The hammer, of the ordinary household type, which figured in Leary's case, was shown court during his trial today.

Leary returned to her room at 11 p. m. Thursday and while removing her outer clothing she said somebody was in the room, she said. Some articles seemed to be missing from where she had left them when she went out, she felt.

She slipped out quietly and called the police, Capt. Charles R. Smith, two officers, who reported finding the man under the bed, clutching the hammer, and they dragged him out.

He is alleged to have told police at the time that he broke in through a rear window and took the hammer from a box of tools in the kitchen.

Leary, 26, was released from Sing Sing last December.

The interest of Mrs. Glendower Evans, who added the Sacco-Vanzetti defense and that of Grand Jury, is also the subject of much comment.

"The going to report Russell Noble's case to the Massachusetts Council for Abolition of the Death Penalty for a full investigation," he said over the telephone from her home in Boston.

"I shall take it up with Mrs. Sarah Kinnear, secretary of the council, first of all, and see what can be done. It is terrible to think of a boy 17 facing possible death in the electric chair."

REMINDER OF HEARTACHES Mrs. Ellis was said to be hardly a quarter of a mile from her home, when she was told of the murder.

The organs, which had been removed, were returned to Dr. Francis W. Anthony, medical examiner, this afternoon.

The burial was in a striking setting, on a knoll rising from the street, where the body was laid out, which pierced the great, blue background of a cloudy sky.

These straight pins somehow worked the upstanding hair of Russell Noble had been, while he lay in the coffin, in the hills, brought thoughts of the loved ones whose crime has caused.

A crowd of about 75, presiding over which the coroner had stretched, watched the services of the ceremony.

Outside the big house in Bunker st., at the corner of Myrtle st., more than 200 had waited to see the funeral, and to start its short journey to the grave.

POLICE GUARD FUNERAL This time was kept on the opposite side of the street, and a number of police officers, who were officers patrolled the street. Automobiles were detoured two blocks away on Myrtle side.

The body, resting in a gray metal coffin, was not taken to the house until shortly before 9 o'clock.

The coffin was not opened at any time. It was placed in the rear of the house, where the funeral home had been, and where the funeral home had been, and where the funeral home had been.

Watching the house from across the street, the crowd, mostly women, saw the figures grouping before the coffin for the last time. The shades were not drawn, and above that room they noted the heaving sobs in the widow's bedroom.

The service at the house was simple, on request of relatives. Rev. Karl Skinner of North Congregational Church read passages from the Scriptures and the stanzas of two hymns. "There is a God in the God's Mercy" and "God of the Living." Prayer and benediction followed.

BORNE TO HER GRAVE The coffin was borne to the grave by Mrs. Margaret Mack, head nurse at Benson Hospital, situated nearby, and the body, which was not joined in the desperate effort to save the life of Mrs. Ellis, which failed after a battle lasting nearly 10 days.

The hearse and funeral car had been drawn up in Maple av., and the coffin was carried through the front door and around the broad veranda to the side. There were flowers in the coffin, in addition to the flower car.

At the grave the 14 mourners stood at the foot of the knoll, while the clergyman stood above and facing them, as if in judgment, the slope of tall trees forming a natural altar to the group of mourners.

Mrs. and Mrs. George K. Clement stood in the center of the group of mourners. Others included the mother of John Dwight Ellis, who died less than two years after his marriage to the woman who became the hammer victim.

The grave was near the entrance of the cemetery, above a row of tombs. The ground was snowed in, and the graves were covered in white. The 10 large floral pieces were set on this blanket.

On the adjoining lot could be seen the grave of Mrs. Ellis. The grave of Mrs. Ellis was in the same lot as the grave of Mrs. Ellis. The grave of Mrs. Ellis was in the same lot as the grave of Mrs. Ellis.

NEW EVIDENCE FOUND. The house service had lasted 30 minutes; those at the grave but a few minutes. "I am the resurrection and the life," said the minister as he read the coffin was lowered into the ground.

Mrs. Anna Reardon, the maid of the house, who had been in the house for many years, was seen in the house. She was seen in the house, and she was seen in the house.

Some Dishes for Lenten Season

FROM MARTHA LEE'S MONDAY MORNING BROADCAST OVER STATION WEEI

I noticed several times that with Lenten listed on the menu in my favorite fish emporium last week and some how I always associate the fish with the official opening of the Spring Fish Season.

There are very plentiful in March and since March and Lent are synonymous, there's another reason for the fish. The fish is not only plentiful but it is also cheap. It can be prepared at home much more reasonably. Let the fish be served on one hour or so in French dressing, then drain and broil and serve on a lettuce leaf with a generous garnish of bacon.

It is a comfort to recall that meals planned around fish and eggs are said to mean clear skin, rosy cheeks and the overcoming of tendencies to high blood pressure, and to mention eggplant and egg dishes. Here are four fish dishes.

BAKED HADDOCK A LA FRIESEN

Order two 2-pound fillets of haddock. Brush over with lemon juice and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Put one fillet in buttered pan, brown in oil, and add 1/2 cup cream. Sprinkle with 1/2 cup buttered bread crumbs. Bake in oven for 15 minutes. Remove to hot serving dish and strain dressing. Reheat remaining pan. Use paper plate to permit serving in dish in which cooked. 1/2 cup cream.

FISH STUFFING

1 cup cracker crumbs and bread crumbs.

1/2 cup melted butter.

1/2 cup salt.

1/2 cup pepper.

Prep. dress lemon juice.

1/2 cup hot water.

Mix ingredients in order given.

PINKY HADDIE SPECIAL.

Soak haddock in milk to cover for one hour.

Separate into flakes, then drain.

There should be 2 cups. Cook 1/2 cup.

finely-chopped green peppers in 1/2 cup butter 3 minutes, stirring constantly. Add 1/2 cup salt, 1/2 cup paprika and 1/2 cup flour.

Cook 3 minutes, then add 4 cups. Pour on gradually while stirring.

continually. 1 cup each of milk and cream. Bring to the boiling point and add fennel haddock. Turn into a buttered dish, cover with butter.

Lessons Are Sent by Mail to All Who Send Request

Readers frequently ask whether Martha Lee has a mailing list to whom copies of the Cooking School lessons are sent. There is no regular list, but she is always glad to send copies of the lessons, so long as the copy lists to those writing to her and enclosing a long 2-cent stamp.

Last week's lesson included "Lily Cakes (the daintiest, easiest and prettiest cakes possible). Lily Cakes (delicious, delicious and decorative). Egg and Mushroom Patties. Scalloped String Beans. Stuffed Sweet Potatoes with banana and marshmallow sauce. Baked Easter Ham. Baked Creamed Potatoes. Baked Frankfurters blanched with bacon. Better send for YOUR copy today."

Dainty Sandwich
A dainty sandwich combination in cream cheese and soft maple sugar, creamed and spread on whole wheat bread, served with cold creamed shrimp, moistened with some of the ginger syrup is delicious. Use and relish cream, blended with thick cream or sweet cream. Strawberry jam and creamed cheese makes a nice sandwich, especially if it's coated.

A Bridge Dainty
Crispinade made of cold hot butter, filled with potato salad or other salad is attractive and easy to make for bridge luncheon.

NEW SPRING COATS MUST BE INDIVIDUAL

Amos Parrish Reports the Fashion
Changes in Coats For Spring

FASHION WEEK—presenting Easter and Spring fashions in coats, dresses, suits, hats, accessories and men's clothing

CLOTHES may make the man. But the woman makes the Spring coat. The new coats are yours to do with as you will. To give them a personality as individual as your own.

Scarf Coats and Coats With Revers

Coats with scarfs are in fashion. For you to tie in coquettish bows. To throw with careless gesture over the shoulder. To cross protectively about the throat. To leave free to play with Spring breezes.

Coats with revers are in fashion. For you to button safely, smartly. And to unbutton to fall in rippling jabots.

Shawl Collars and Coats Without Collars

Coats with shawl-like collars are in fashion. To drape as you like them. Closed... open. In soft folds... or flat.

Coats without collars are in fashion. To wear with sleek sophistication. To make utterly feminine with a gay scarf... or the collar of the dress worn outside.

And Coats That Wrap Around

Coats that wrap around are in fashion. Closely—to silhouette each figure curve. Loosely—to soften angles and fill in hollows.

It's all in the wearing—the personality of your Spring coat. Self-expression is the thing. And there's a little touch of drama in the wearing—all the smarter!

TOMORROW—in the third Fashion Week article Amos Parrish reports the new spring fashions in fashion

These Coats Are Spring's Fashions

A dash of flat white fur on a black coat is a sure prescription for Spring smartness. Full-elbow sleeves, a sash belt and a perky bow at the throat makes the coat shown above 100% fashionable.

A fabric scarf to tie, fly or what-you-will—that makes the coat at the left easy to wear and individual. Watch for raglan sleeves like these. They're smart!

The coat with narrow roll collar is shown on the small figure at the left. Simple. Sleek. Sophisticated. Like Vivienne in her best manner—especially when it has bell sleeves.

The collarless coat (next) is new. Rather daring. Dress it up with a crisp scarf for devastating chic.

The coat with one-sided shawl (right) is different from the usual shawl. Interesting. A good type for the longer-haired furs—if you prefer them.

Fashion Facts About Spring Coats

Most coats are belted. Narrow—wide. Buckled—tied. Worn tight or easy—as your personal-ity demands.

Sleeves have interest. In gauntlet cuffs. Elbow fullness. Flap-like bandings. Tucks, seams. New wide belt shapes.

Fabrics are soft. Like dress fabrics. Crepey. Meshy. Spongy. Fitting any figure easily.

Most coats wrap. Well over to the side. With a diagonal closing line in the bodice section.

Most furs on coats are flat. Short-haired. Soft. Pliable. Easy to tie, when they're made into scarfs.

Most coats flare slightly. Less than last year. But with graceful lines. Easy to walk in.

Most coats have the dress-look. In their fit... their lines... their details.

TWO LEADERS IN LAWRENCE MILL STRIKE FREED UNDER BAIL

PAIR JUBILANT; LAY CLAIM TO VICTORY

Edith Berkman and Patrick J. Devine Escorted Home by Harry Cantor

Edith Berkman and Patrick J. Devine, alleged communist leaders of the recent Lawrence mill strike, were released today from the custody of immigration authorities on bonds of $5000, and immediately departed for Lawrence.

They issued a statement that their efforts in the labor unrest among workers in the woolen mills had been successful.

The jubilee pair were accompanied to Lawrence by Nathan Kay, counsel for the International Defense League, and Harry Cantor, well known Boston Communist who was seized by police in the Red riots on the Common February 25. Devine was greeted as he left the jail by his wife, Mrs. Rose Frank Devine, who threw her arms around him and conducted him to a waiting car, in which the trip to Lawrence was made.

Before leaving, Devine and Miss Berkman distributed copies of a statement prepared jointly by them, in which they claimed victory for the workers.

William Murdoch, arrested with Devine and Berkman, is in Chelsea Hospital recuperating from wounds received during the riot in Lawrence. According to hospital officials he is able to leave the hospital.

BOSS DOESN'T USE

By JOE CASBMAN
Pittsfield, Feb. 28, March 9.—Ty Cobb once remarked that Bob Quinn was too honest to be a successful baseball manager. There is no doubt that the first Ross "prey" is too kind hearted at times to be a successful manager.

Quinn's former giving breaks to players from whom he has received little consideration.

He turned Phil Tru, Ben Reagen and Johnny Hendon loose this winter. All three pulled down good salaries from the Sox for several years without ever playing extra well in return, and if they did owe the "prey" anything when he finally decided to get rid of them he certainly didn't owe them anything.

He has sacrificed several thousands of dollars to keep the Sox in the major league. He was offered more than the draft price for minor league clubs for any of these players but instead he went around begging fellow managers to take the three at a big loss to himself.

Quinn Refused to Send Player Home

Gene Foy, rockin' outfielder, was a holdout for a time early in the season. He was offered $10,000 a year, but he broke his word during the first week of practice.

Any other manager in the game would have sent him home, remembering the salary advance he would have received. But Quinn refused to do so. He kept him on the team, and he was a good player.

Congress Failed Citizens

Undesirable Aliens Still Flood Our Country

In the all-important matter of driving undesirable aliens out of this country and keeping them out, the American people did not get a square deal from their Senators and Representatives in the Seventy-first Congress which has just expired.

Congress failed to provide a proper system of registration for approximately 7,000,000 foreigners here persons now living here who have not been naturalized.

Experts agree and experience proves that registration of this country's alien population is absolutely essential if the aliens legally here are to be protected in their rights and these illegally here are to be apprehended and deported.

Congress has failed to reinforce the deportation laws under which only about one-fourth of all the aliens illegally admitted to this country can be deported if caught. Estimates of the total number of aliens illegally here run as high as 3,000,000. Whether these aliens were admitted without inspection, or passed inspection by means of false statements, or have committed serious offenses punishable by deportation, all are here IN VIOLATION OF THE LAW.

All these alien law-breakers are here in defiance of the public will. All are a menace to the public welfare. All should be rounded up and deported as swiftly as an adequate and efficient inspection force can do this job.

Congress failed to establish a scientific system for the selection of immigrants that will afford to American industry the same protection that we give to American industry by the tariff.

Selective immigration will increase the quality and decrease the quantity of immigration admitted within the quota limits assigned to foreign countries. It will enable us to keep out aliens not needed in our industrial life.

Under the law as it is today we must admit a pedlar with a proper application and refuse admission to a great industrial engineer whose entry would start the wheels of a new industry going. No selection on the basis of national needs is permitted. Justice to the 4,000,000 or 5,000,000 American citizens who have been thrown out of employment through no fault of their own demands that Congress end its neglect of the immigration problem.

Adoption of a sound immigration program will do far more to reduce unemployment permanently and relieve distress than most of the emergency legislation already enacted by Congress for purposes of temporary relief.

It is a national misfortune that the expiring Congress, in spite of President Hoover's earnest recommendation, failed to enact a comprehensive legislative program which would have purged the household of the Nation of undesirable aliens within, and protected it from undesirable aliens without.

This should be one of the outstanding achievements of the new Congress which meets next December.

"We are a nation, and not a hodge-podge of foreign nationalities," said Theodore Roosevelt. "We are a people and not a mongrel breeding house. We have come to this country for but one thing, the Stars and Stripes. We have come here for but one language, the language of Washington and Lincoln. We must insist on a unified nationality, with one flag, one language, one set of national ideals."

This Is Art Week

Many Features Offered You

This week is "Art Week in Boston." Every week should be art week in Boston.

As Americans we are too prone to seek beauty abroad. As Bostonians we are far-sighted who neglect art in our midst 51 weeks of the year.

Art Week is sponsored by the industrial and civic art committee of the Chamber of Commerce, which has co-ordinated art groups and their activities for public attention during the period. Groups devoted to both pure and applied art will hold special meetings, the museum have programs as usual at the art schools, and the department stores are co-operating with lectures and exhibitions.

The Chamber has available an attractive program of lectures; the Chamber and co-operating agencies are to be thanked sincerely, for the plan should develop a keener appreciation of things beautiful.

But don't get into the habit of seeing art, as you see your dentist, once or twice a year.

They Hesitate to Quit Jobs

JOHN ALEXANDER LIVINGSTON is not at all women who work for a living.

Mr. Livingston took time in his busy life to write to me about it.

Single women who work for a living are not enough, says Mr. Livingston.

They take jobs away from single men, and how can single men be married if they haven't any jobs?

And how can a normal man marry a woman who is not a normal man?

Well, now, Mr. Livingston, of course we all agree that in times when jobs are scarce no woman can afford to live with a man who is not able to support her and her children.

Dear me, what voracious appetites these married women who work must have, mustn't they?

FIGHTING FOR HIS OWN

Against the ever-threatening menace of the vicious dog traffic American must always be on guard to protect the home. It has been a hard battle for the Eagle, and it will continue to be a hard battle. But the Eagle, pitting intelligence, strength and endurance against the cunning and deadly poisons of the Reptile, will win in the end.

PLEASE, MISTER, PUT HIM BACK!

The same sober majority of the American people have come to realize that Prohibition does NOT prohibit and that any good it was supposed to bring to the nation has been more than offset by the long string of evils that followed in its wake.

As a temperance measure it has been a DISMAL FAILURE. There is GROWING INTEPERANCE, especially among the youth of the land. Some day, BEFORE LONG, WE HOPE Prohibition, as we know it, will be only a memory.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, March 8.—Dining of a modern Peppy: Up-listening to mournful cowboy songs and nothing to me to express frustration. Came a note from Al Johnson that my mention of his 199 overcoats left him but two—one for you and one for me."

So laboring briefly and through the town, stopping here and there and picking up Wellington Cross and his wife and Mrs. Dan Hanna, Jr., and driving them to Wallington's apartment. In the evening with my wife and Justice to Arkel's for an Armenian dinner of lamb kebabs and home where the play showed him in a prison cell, laughing bitterly at fate, at those who followed his trial to a big shudder.

Personal nomination for the most appealing male voice over the radio—that of Norman V. Pearce. A head waiter glorified to hotel management recently engaged on an incident that cost him a $40,000 substantive party. It was a swanky affair and the panjandrum politely but firmly requested a list of the proposed guests. All of which was indignantly regarded as none of his business by the parents. So they switched the affair to a most hated rival inn.

On Park avenue six dinky five legs cost $1.50, which is a little breath-taking for those who remember when a cord of wood was 50 cents or a dollar.

A certain lady recently escaped unforgettable embarrassment by a party. Her husband rounded in a cocktail party with a hand-picked crowd of show-brosers. Hearing the rattle of the shaker, she stepped into the room clad in pajamas. There she delivered a stunning manifesto on the evils of social drinking, stormed out and slammed the door.

As the lower section to her pajamas dropped.

The sport of wrestling, which has been clouded by insinuations of fakery, is coming out of the fog. And fans owe a profound salutation to the veteran promoter, Jack Corley, a recent wrestler at the Garden brought out 22,000.

My last close-up of a wrestling bout was in Los Angeles three years ago. On my left was a dumpy gentleman with an orange in his hand. During one of those agonizing twists of the combats, my left hand slipped and I found I had a full glass of juice squeezed in the face.

Francis Albertini tells me a spectacle at the Garden during an exciting match this winter actually threw a shoulder out of place. A fellow must feel a daisy, to end, rubbing into a doctor's office to explain he slipped his shoulder out of focus just watching two rough men.

Few have been roughed no long on Broadway as the dancer, Jack Donahue. In the Rialto's smothered and I have seen a self-centered microcosm, the passing of a friend is quickly forgotten. He is a man who has been through the fire of the flash-light and did not excite the White Way envy.

"There is," writes M. F. Drake, "a hard bodied tall stout here who lets me see his arms and chest. And why? Well, I am the 'closest' friend anyone ever had."

Tourism Holds Up

Sign of Improved Business Sentiment

The recent willingness of numerous key business executives to leave their desks and set out upon a winter vacation is another barometer sign of improved sentiment.

From a long-term standpoint, there has been a rapid growth in the tendency of Northerners to seek summer weather by temporarily migrating with the birds.

Even in this year of abnormal business, the tourist agencies report no general slackening of winter travel.

However, arrangements were made unusually late this winter as many waited for signs of business stabilization.

Accordingly, foreign travel has been principally to nearby tropical places, for which last-minute arrangements could be made. Mediterranean and round-the-world cruises, for which bookings are usually made far in advance, suffered substantially. Yet even in the case of these cruises to faraway places, an unusually large number of persons signed up within the last week before sailings.

West Indies cruises, which require relatively little time away from business, are proving increasingly popular.

And there is evidence in the statistics of pleasure travel that Americans have acted on President Hoover's suggestion that during the depression they spend an increasing proportion of their free time within the borders of the United States.

Despite the curtailment in patronage of distant cruises, the leading travel agencies report no falling off in their tourist bookings to American resorts, including Florida and California. Half of the travelers' checks issued by the American Express Company are now used within our own borders.

The Department of Commerce reports that a larger number of persons visited the national parks in the first ten months of 1930 than in the corresponding periods of 1929 and 1928.

Domestic travel is heightened also by the search for winter golf courses.

The best travel goes beyond purely economic factors and has distinct cultural values.

It builds up important assets in mutual understanding.

As the standard of living rises, pleasure travel is bound to increase.

So, apparently, tourism involves such deep-seated human impulses that even in depressed times it keeps up a better volume than numerous other industries.

Where business is at present slack, employers ought to give salaried workers an opportunity to take extra time off for winter travel.

In future years, as business improves, it may be difficult to spare such employees at this season.

Listen, World! - Upbringing

By ELISIE ROBINSON

She Didn't Raise Boy to Be Husband

MAMA DIDN'T raise her boy to be a husband—there's the cause of many a domestic tragedy.

She trained him to be a doctor or a lawyer, a druggist or shoe clerk, a neck tie clipper or a toe dancer, but not once in a blue moon does she train him to be a husband.

So, when the Only Girl takes her the job, expecting to draper her life around a Sir or a Lady O's, what does she find? She finds a girl.

When the average young man marries, he doesn't even know how to take care of his own personal effects, much less assume charge of a home and family.

Since he was born, his sister has been instructed in the duties of a mother and mother, but has never talked seriously to him about the duties of a husband and father.

Have you trained him for the sacrifice and self-control which are required in the Head of the Household? No one has. Instead, it's been drilled into him that he must be a gentleman.

He's been drilled into him that he must be a gentleman. He's been drilled into him that he must be a gentleman. He's been drilled into him that he must be a gentleman.

He's been drilled into him that he must be a gentleman. He's been drilled into him that he must be a gentleman. He's been drilled into him that he must be a gentleman.
